How we can help

Some scenarios

Some scenarios to start with. You are:

- a small start-up software company requiring a User Guide and Online Help for your software product
- a small manufacturing company requiring an O & M Manual for your new product
- a department manager for a large multinational company requiring documentation to record how your department goes about its business
- an HSE Manager requiring the production of an HSE Manual to document the company's policies, processes and procedures
- an Asset Manager requiring your asset's documentation to be updated to reflect a major change to infrastructure and the resulting procedures
- a Project Manager requiring a manual for your project which is due for completion later this year
- a manager for a large multinational company tasked with updating the company's Business Management System
- a Project Manager soon to commission a new facility who has identified a need for documentation including training
- a manager for a large multinational company tasked with documenting the company's stage gate processes
